Minton Tile Pattern at Font

SAINT JOHN'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Carlisle, Pennsylvania

Completed 1995

This project involved the total renovation/restoration of this late nineteenth century church. A new decorative painting scheme was introduced, additional lighting provided, existing furnishings renovated, and a striking floor pattern designed. The existing chancel floor contained original Victorian Minton tiles from the late nineteenth century. We were able to locate the company in England that still produces these historical tiles from the original molds. Using these tiles, we designed a decorative pattern to highlight the central aisle, the communion area (which we relocated to the main floor level for better accessibility), and the space at the entrance around the newly-relocated baptismal font.
